

Geraud's Will Not be Reopening its shop in South Hill

Geraud's Patisserie and Food Boutique will not be reopening its doors at its present shop location in Lower South Hill. The decision was not easy and not made without thorough consideration but compulsory from an economic standpoint. On September 6, 2017, all residents of Anguilla were affected in one way or another by hurricane IRMA. As a direct result of IRMA's aftermath, unfortunately, without electricity and the ability to generate regular and sufficient income, I do not have the resources to fulfill the financial obligations that come with running a business as costly as my shop. In this challenging time, practicality and reality must trump all other emotions and feelings. I do regret having to leave the location but was very fortunate to have the opportunity. In a week or so, the production center will hopefully be operational, and I look forward to continuing villa and future catering orders for Christmas time and ongoing. These future orders will help me get back on track financially. Anguilla is growing stronger every day and once I can, I will return to the main game. This is not the end but simply a necessary adjustment period. A future online catering website is presently under construction and will be available soon. Please feel free to send an email for inquiries or any future orders to geraulvest1@hotmail.com (don't forget the 1).

Stay safe, eat well and I'll see you soon! Xo
